and case studies

this book advances the understanding of corporate sustainability and challenges and roles of sustainability accounting in the asia pacific region the asia pacific region has shown fast economic growth for several decades which is expected to continue in this context asia has become the production engine of the global economy at the same time scientific reports reveal that some planetary boundaries are crossed for example relating to biodiversity and climate change companies in the asia pacific region are therefore increasingly challenged to reduce their environmental impacts to document their social contribution and to contribute to sustainable development key approaches to identify sustainability problems and challenges to support improvement processes and to back up sustainability contributions include accounting and reporting in contrast to the high relevance of accounting and reporting for corporate sustainability for the asia pacific region academic research has so far been dominated by western researchers and pre dominantly dealt with western and japanese cases and approaches it is thus time to take account of asian perspectives on accounting and reporting for sustainability in the asia pacific region this volume examines key aspects of the migration process that are particularly relevant in the asian context it looks into established concepts and theoretical propositions that have found application in other areas particularly in the west and explores their validity and relevance in understanding the realities of migration in asia global and asian perspectives on international migration features the perspectives of scholars from asia and other parts of the world as well as diverse backgrounds it presents a variety of forms directions policies and institutions including circular and temporary migration the management of cultural diversity the gender perspective on migration in north america europe and asia returning migrants migration governance in the asean economic community and the determinants of migration in conclusion the book explores migration transition in asia and revisits select theories in light of recent evidence with its dialogic approach to migration in asia by renowned authors from various regions and disciplines this book will serve as a valuable resource to policy makers in research and academia civil society international organizations and the private sector journal of international development this study brings together asian and asia based experts of international relations and u s foreign policy to present diverse asian views about preferred modes of u s engagement in the region and compare their views with u s interests in the region a prerequisite exercise to truly multilateral regional security governance with the rise of chinese power in absolute and relative terms over the next decades as a key driving factor of the international relations in the asia pacific the united states has announced its rebalance to asia previously referred as pivot to asia strategy asian responses perceptions and even interpretations of the u s strategy have been diverse misconceptions of the u s strategy can be attributed to the built in contradictions among its objectives deliberate ambiguities left by the architects of the strategy mismatch between the stated strategy and actual policy implementations during the last three years and subjective reading by the asian countries through the lens of their own interests this book will illuminate the diversity of asian responses and perceptions and analyze the underlying reasons of the diversity the overarching framework of analysis for this book is the very dilemma of alliances abandonment and entrapment which hedging aims at evading abandonment fear is primarily of the junior partner of an alliance that its senior partner may not come to its aid in crisis meanwhile entrapment fear works both ways the united states may drag its allies into its conflict against a third party but u s allies may also drag the united states into their regional conflicts in which the united states has no direct or significant stake the asian choices of their strategic responses to the u s rebalancing will be described and analyzed through the lens of the perceived balance between the abandonment and entrapment fears as well as other historical and domestic factors unique to each asian country the reading of the u s strategy by asian countries is a subjective matter and their interests likely influence their analysis and consequently strategies it is not the aim of this volume to establish well defined cause and effect chain between the u s strategy and asian strategies but thick descriptions have enabled some chapter authors to identify reciprocal relations between the two while china s growth is the most important driver of the changing strategic landscape in the asia pacific and the new u s strategy the new u s strategy inevitably influence the chinese strategy which in turn triggers a chain reaction of strategic revisions in asian countries this book is essential reading for scholars in asian politics u s foreign policy international relations as well as for policy makers the book analyses the knowledge beliefs and behaviours that comprise the environmental attitudes of young people in the asia pacific region and the cultural political and educational contexts that have shaped them the findings are based upon a questionnaire survey of over 10 000 young people together with focus group studies in india south china japan thailand singapore hong kong brunei indonesia australia new zealand fiji and the west coast of the usa

u s engagement in the asia pacific shows how asian countries have responded to the evolving strategic dynamics in their region but also their proactive efforts at shaping their regional environment according to their respective interests the growing economic and political significance of asia has exposed a tension in the modern international order despite expanding power and influence asian states have played a minimal role in creating the norms and institutions of international law today they are the least likely to be parties to international agreements or to be represented in international organizations that is changing there is widespread scholarly and practitioner interest in international law at present in the asia pacific region as well as developments in the practice of states the change has been driven by threats as well as opportunities transnational issues such as climate change and occasional flashpoints like the territorial disputes of the south china and the east china seas pose challenges while economic integration and the proliferation of specialized branches of law and dispute settlement mechanisms have also encouraged greater domestic implementation of international norms across asia these evolutions join the long standing interest in parts of asia notably south asia in post colonial theory and the history of international law the oxford handbook of international law in asia and the pacific brings together pre eminent and emerging specialists to analyse the approach to and influence of key states of the region as well as whether truly asian trends can be identified and what this might mean for international order this book is the first in a series of volumes focused on publishing the latest thinking and findings from project management research it concentrates on the asia pacific perspective and draws from conference papers presented at the international project management association ipma world congress held in brisbane australia in 2011 as well as the australian institute of project management national conference held in melbourne australia in 2012 contributors to this book consist of both academics and practitioners and represent the latest developments in australia the netherlands russia the united kingdom and the united states of america the essays brought together here focus on the themes of project management maturity governance programme and portfolio management and methods tools and techniques the book concludes with two papers that explore the future implications for the project management profession
